So I have a component I created in my app, which as you can see, has a UI (a screen) and some more functionality. The thing is, it's a bit messy with all the buttons and labels - I have to add css to get it looking nice. The problem is, I don't have any design skills to do it. I want to write a function which will create a screen with the UI elements I specify, but I don't know how to get started, and what's even more important is, how to build in a nice design. So, my question is: How can I write a function which will generate a reusable UI with labels and buttons, and how can I include some design? And is it possible to do it in Angular 2? A: I've used the Angular Material framework which does exactly this. It has templates you can use to customize your own UI. The official page is here: In particular, look at the examples and templates in the "Sections" tab. 1.
